ITINERARY

Operate: Daily 09:00–13:30 Tuesday – Sunday (Closed on Monday)

The Kudi-Chin Community is one of the oldest in Bangkok. Buddhists, Christians and Muslims all live side by side for hundreds of years. There is also a Portuguese Church here called Santa Cruz Church built in 1770. This side of the river is actually a lot older than the Bangkok side. Through the course of this historical walk, sample original Portuguese style cake from the famous Kudi-Chin Bakery (Khanom Kude-Chin), Baan Kudi Chin museum, visit a Chinese Hokkien Shrine and visit Kalayanamitr Varamahaviharn Temple. one of the royal temples, established by a nobleman “Chaophraya Nikonbodin” during King Rama III era. The interior temple sits an enormous golden “Phra Buddha Trai Rattananayok” also known by the locals as “Sampokong”, crafted in the same style of as the Buddha statue from Wat Phanan Choeng in Ayutthaya. Moreover, the ordination hall also housed a Buddha image-receiving offerings, which is considered unique since most Buddha statue in temples are in meditation or in a relaxed posture.

Wat Kalayanamitr, It is recommended to visit with respect to the worshippers, as it is an active, less-touristy temple.
